6. Open Response:

6.1) What are the strengths of this course?

- The ability to work your own speed and pace.

- The only strengths to this class is also the weakness, and that is the amount of assignments didn't give much leniency.

- This course was very relevant to my degree plan and career plan. The information and lessons are beneficial to anyone planning on starting their own business or going into the management role for a company. It will help with all the legal sides of a business as far as real estate, wills and trusts, and torts. The instructor has not only the knowledge and education to teach this course but the work experience that he is able to give great examples from.

- This course was well organized and the video instruction was helpful.

6.2) What changes would you recommend that would improve this course?

- I do not think there are any changes that I would make or recommend for this course.

- My only recommendation is to put the Discussions and Quizzes on the weekly schedule tabs when they are due. It may help the course seem a little less confusing and lets the student know exactly what is due each week when they click on each week in the weekly schedule tabs instead of going to the discussion and quiz tabs.

- No changes.

- The discussions is one of the things I would change. It is difficult to remember to turn in the discussion the Monday prior to the due date. I feel like that should be a deadline that we are notified on in d2L.

6.3) Any further, constructive comments?

- I believe this is an amazing course that would benefit anyone not just those in business courses.

- I would highly recommend this course an this instructor.

- No.

- The discussions is a concern because of the due dates. Another concern is lack of assignments to hold a grade if some are missed or in my case that I didn't do well on the first test. It doesn't give leniency for a chance to make it up.
