Comments Report

5. Comments

<sup>5.1)</sup> Your instructor will appreciate any comments you have concerning the course or his/her teaching.

- The instructors have utilized interactive learning techniques and peer teaching techniques which appeals to many different learning styles of the individual students. The clinical aspect of this course creates a less controlled environment compared to the didactic classes, which makes covering the course material in a logical manner depend on the happenings of the clinical setting. The expectations of the assignments were sometimes vague. Throughout the semester, the instructors have displayed disapproval to questions and comments by students, by using either nontherapeutic silence or inaccurate assumptions which does not promote a learning environment. The instructors put excellent effort and incredible amounts of time into providing written as well as verbal feedback for the students on the clinical documentation forms. Overall I would recommend this course to future students.
