6. Open Response:

6.1) What are the strengths of this course?

- Getting to know yourself and others.

- Really good learnng material.

- This not only encourages leadership style learning, but also puts you in a leadership frame of mind. For example, the basics of the assignment are given, it's up to you to figure out what needs to be completed to make this successful.

6.2) What changes would you recommend that would improve this course?

- He needs to grade the material every week we didn't get graded until week 3 or 4 and he said you could do better to get a B, but if he would've gave me feedback on week 1 I would have tried to do better since week. The projects are hard because not everyone do their job. Discussions are hard because not everyone post at beggining of week so it makes it hard to try to comment on the post every week.

- More organization.

- The teacher improved as the course went on but some items needed more clarification.

6.3) Any further, constructive comments?

- If you take projects out, this is great as it gives more focus and recognition of the course. But it would be nice if those students that already finished the assignment before it was removed would get extra consideration for that assignment and being proactive.
